NEWSLETTER INTRODUCTION

Welcome back, MIT! This is the penultimate edition of our newsletter for this semester. It's only our second issue, so we're still making continual adjustments and improvements. If you ever have any suggestions, please do not hesitate to reach out to us.

UPCOMING EVENTS

We have a lot of cool events happening in May!

WiSTEM week is happening this week (April 29th – May 3rd), so go check out some of their events!

Our next and last faculty dinner of the semester will be on Thursday 5/9 @ 6 pm with Prof. Katrina LaCurts, rsvp/sign-ups will be sent out soon.

BOBA STUDY BREAK

On Wednesday, April 24th, we hosted a study break featuring boba and Chick-fil-A chicken nuggets! As usual, a long line formed, and in an hour, our supplies (two large trays of nuggets, two tables piled with dozens of bobas) were all consumed. Thanks to everyone who came out and had some refreshments!

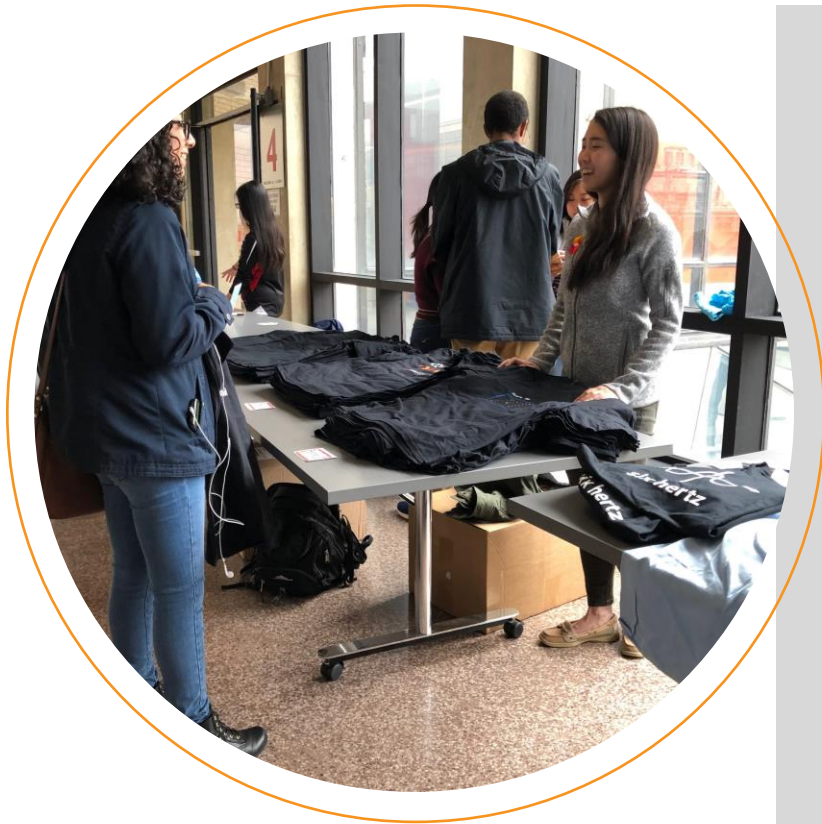

UROP FAIR

On April 8th, we hosted a UROP Fair for students looking for some summer work. Various post-docs, PIs, and grad students from different departments came and gave quick overviews of what they were working on.

Afterwards, students were able to network and find projects that they wanted to work on.

Of course, we also provided Bonchon for all the attendees!

CPW SHIRT GIVEAWAY

During CPW, on April 12th, we gave away some IEEE/ACM T-shirts to the prefrosh that came through to attend a nearby EECS info session.

We were able to tell the incoming students about our club and get them hyped up about course 6! It was a fun time for everyone!

VOLTAGE TRIVIA NIGHT RECAP

On Thursday, April 18, Voltage held an EE-themed trivia night, complete with Kahoot quizzes, an ample supply of boba, and endless trays of Thai food! There were many attendees who all had a fun-filled evening.
